

Buysse & Partners completes the final investment for its Latin American Growth Fund I and continues its strategy

The last and final investment has been added to the Buysse & Partners Latin American Growth Fund (LAGF I). It is a commitment to a private equity fund investing in alternative financial services companies focusing on consumers and businesses that are not served by the traditional established financial institutions in Peru, Colombia and Mexico. With this final commitment LAGF I is fully invested with two private equity funds in Brazil and two funds in the Andean region.

Buysse & Partners will continue to provide unique access to investment opportunities in the most promising economies in Latin America. The firm will begin fundraising for its follow-up LAGF II applying the same strategy as its predecessor, investing growth capital in local SMEs capturing the increasing spending on education, consumer goods, health care, leisure, and other products and services by the more than 70 million people that entered the ranks of the middle class in the economies of Latin America.
